Description:

This database of North Carolina marriages to 1825 contains over 103,000 names. Each entry includes groom, bride, marriage date, county, and state. Every name is indexed so you can search for one name, or two names that are linked.

The marriage date is usually the date of marriage as given in the original entry. However, when no marriage date is given (e.g., the "marriage return" was not provided to the record keeper), the date of the license is used. In a few cases, a marriage will be listed twice, but in two different counties. This most often happened when a couple obtained a license in one county, but were actually married in another.

These marriage records, compiled by Liahona Research at the LDS Family History Library in Salt Lake City, UT, unfortunately do not contain citations for the origin of each entry. The purpose of this database is to provide a time and place for as many marriages as possible. It is up to the researcher to examine original records (see the Family History Library Catalog--available at any LDS family history center-- under the heading "Vital Records" for the appropriate locality) and gather whatever additional genealogical information is desired.

How Can I Best Research in the North Carolina Census, 1790-1890?

Censuses can provide useful details and information about your ancestors and can be used to fill in gaps of information missing from other records. Information gathered from state censuses can also be used as a springboard to lead you to other records. Remember that an index entry is only a reference to more detailed information found in census records themselves. It is important that researchers consult the actual census records to which these indexes refer.

All available census schedules, from 1790 to 1930, have been microfilmed and are available here at Ancestry.com, at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., at the National Archives' regional archives in twelve states, at the LDS Family History Library and LDS family history centers throughout North America, at many large libraries, and through microfilm lending companies. Some state and local agencies may have census schedules only for the state or area served.

How Can I Best Research North Carolina Marriage Bonds, 1741-1868?

There are many types of marriage records. Some of these include consent affidavits, marriage banns (this was a religious custom), marriage bonds, marriage licenses, and marriage certificates. The information provided on these records will vary according to purpose and the year in which they were created, but almost all of them will at least list the names of the bride and groom and the date and place of the event. Occasionally the names of the couple's parents, ages of bride and groom, birthplaces of bride and groom, signature of the issuing clerk, and other details will also be found among marriage records.

Use information found in marriage records to lead you to other records. For instance, if the ages of the bride and groom are listed in the record, you can calculate an approximate date of birth, which will then tell you when to begin looking for birth records of these individuals. Try to match the dates on marriage licenses to newspaper announcements of weddings that can fill in extra details. Also, see if there are city directories, church records, or other records of the individual that you have been able to pinpoint being in a certain place at a certain time.

HARDY CARROLL

Hardy Carroll was born in Sampson County March 12, 1791, son of Alexander and Lucy Royal Carroll. His parents were married April 7, 1783. His maternal grandfather was Hardy Royal, for whom he was named.

The will of Alexander Carroll lists the following children: Rebekah, Phanny Bridges, Hardy, Wylie, Reason, Mary Ann Ledder and Betty Ann Royal.

Hardy joined the army at an early age and served in the War of 1812, rising to the rank of Major. After the war he came to Stokes County and on March 18, 1815 married Elizabeth Ferguson, daughter of John and Hannah Ferguson. She was born Feb. 18 1794.

It is safe to assume that one reason for Hardy Carroll to come to Stokes County was that he and Nicholas Frost, also a veteran of the War of 1812, became good friends during their army days. Frost and John Ferguson were neighbors in the Neatman Creek community of North Meadows Township.

When Carroll married Elizabeth Ferguson, Nicholas Frost was his bondsman. This official at weddings in those assumed a great responsibility, especially if the groom was from another area. There had to be more than a casual friendship between two men when one of them would take this risk for the other.

He bought his first land in 1825 and eventually became the owner of over 1500 acres.

Hardy and Elizabeth were the parents of four children; Mary Ann, their only daughter who married Landon H. Southern, Calvin J. who married Valerie Johnson, John H. who married Selena Jane Johnson and Hardy R. "Rile" who married Minnie Judd Gibson.

In 1839, the first year of free public schools in North Carolina, he was elected by his neighbors as one of the local committeemen for District #43 and served in this capacity until 1846.

In March 1851 he qualified as a Justice-of-the-Peace and took his seat on the bench. At this same session he was appointed a member of the Stokes County Board of Common School Superintendents (This was the forerunner of the Board of Education). He held this position until 1858. This session was the next to last term every to meet at Germanton Courthouse. The September Session met at the new Courthouse in Crawford, later Danbury. During the years that he was a J.P. he served many times as a member of the Court of Pleas and Quarters and several times as Chairman of said Court.

He was a Trustee of the Missionary Baptist Church of Christ at Friendship Meeting House and was on the Board that bought one acre of land on which to build a new meeting house Jan. 23 1849.

He died March 28, 1858 and his wife died August 20, 1872. They are buried at the Carroll Graveyard just off the Mountain View Church Road.

He was included in a list of students attending District #43 in 1847, where his brother-in-law Landon H. Southern was teacher.

A list of teachers in Stokes County for 1860 included H.R. Carroll.

He was in the Civil War where he rose to the rank of Captain. He evidently volunteered from some other county as his name is not included in the veterans from Stokes County.

He was a local school Committeeman for District #50 from 1877 through 1887. Appointed post master at Neatman August 17, 1880 when it was first established and served until Sept. 12, 1890.

The Conservative Party meeting in Danbury April 30, 1870, selected him as a candidate for county commissioner. He was forced to withdraw as he was under a "ban of Proscription". Although a Justice of the Peace, he had not been pardoned for taking up arms against the United States.

How Can I Best Research North Carolina Marriage Bonds, 1741-1868?

There are many types of marriage records. Some of these include consent affidavits, marriage banns (religious custom), marriage bonds, marriage licenses, and marriage certificates. The information provided in these records will vary according to purpose and the year in which they were created, but almost all of them list the names of the bride and groom and the date and place of the event. Occasionally the names of the parents, ages of bride and groom, birthplaces of bride and groom, signature of the issuing clerk, and other details will also be found among marriage records.

Use information found in marriage records to lead you to other records. For instance, if the ages of the bride and groom are listed in the record, you can calculate an approximate date of birth, which will then tell you where to begin looking for birth records of these individuals. Try to match the dates on marriage licenses to newspaper announcements of weddings that can fill in extra details. Also, see if there are city directories, church records, or other records of the individual that you have been able to pinpoint being in a certain place at a certain time.
